Cautionary Note Regarding Forward-Looking Statements

The Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995 (“PSLRA”) provides a “safe harbor” for forward-looking statements. Any prospectus, prospectus supplement, Annual Report to common shareholders, proxy statement, Form 10-K, Form 10-Q or Form 8-K or any other written or oral statements made by us or on our behalf may include forward-looking statements that reflect our current views with respect to future events and financial or operational performance. Such statements include forward-looking statements both with respect to us in general, and to the insurance and reinsurance sectors in particular (both as to underwriting and investment matters). Statements that include the words “expect,” “estimate,” “intend,” “plan,” “believe,” “project,” “anticipate,” “may,” “could,” or “would” and similar statements of a future or forward-looking nature identify forward-looking statements for purposes of the PSLRA or otherwise.

The proposed transaction is subject to risks and uncertainties and factors that could cause XL’s actual results to differ, possibly materially, from those in the specific projections, goals, assumptions and statements include, but are not limited to (i) that XL may be unable to complete the proposed transaction because, among other reasons, conditions to the closing of the proposed transaction may not be satisfied or waived, including the failure to obtain XL shareholder approval for the proposed transaction or that a governmental entity may prohibit, delay or refuse to grant approval for the consummation of the transaction; (ii) uncertainty as to the timing of completion of the proposed transaction; (iii) the occurrence of any event, change or other circumstances that could give rise to the termination of the merger agreement; (iv) risks related to disruption of management’s attention from XL’s ongoing business operations due to the proposed transaction; (v) the effect of the announcement of the proposed transaction on XL’s relationships with its clients, operating results and business generally; and (vi) the outcome of any legal proceedings to the extent initiated against XL or others following the announcement of the proposed transaction, as well as XL’s management’s response to any of the aforementioned factors.

The foregoing review of important factors should not be construed as exhaustive and should be read in conjunction with the other cautionary statements that are included herein or elsewhere. We undertake no obligation to update publicly or revise any forward-looking statement, whether as a result of new information, future developments or otherwise, except as required by the federal securities laws.

Dear reinsurance broker partners,

Since the formation of XL Catlin almost three years ago we have grown to become one of the largest global P&C reinsurers with close to $4.7 billion of GWP in 2017 supported by more than 600 employees in 18 countries. This is thanks - in large part - to your unwavering support.

Now we are about to enter the next stage of our evolution as a company.

As you will have seen from our announcement on March 5th, our parent company, XL Group Ltd, has entered into an agreement to be acquired by AXA. As noted by our CEO Mike McGavick, the combination creates a powerful opportunity to continue the XL Catlin strategy with greater strength and a new dimension.

I'm excited about what this all means, including that we will have the support of a bigger balance sheet to provide greater security and solutions for emerging and evolving risks. In fact, we will have one of the largest market caps of companies in our industry.

Also while coming together as XL Catlin required integration of duplicate businesses, portfolios, systems and processes, the AXA plan is different in that there is very little business overlap, especially from a reinsurance standpoint. The intent is to combine our operations with AXA Corporate Solutions, forming AXA's new global P&C insurance and reinsurance division.

With Greg Hendrick slated to head the new division and both companies having similar cultures focused on superior underwriting, innovation and highly responsive client service, we expect a smooth integration.

The transaction is expected to be completed in the second half of this year, subject to approval by our shareholders and regulators. Until then, we will continue to operate as two separate companies and our appetite and business plan remain unchanged.

When the transaction closes, given that AXA does not currently operate in Reinsurance, we don't expect any significant changes to our Reinsurance business. We plan to continue to provide you and our clients the superior service and innovative solutions that you have come to expect from us.

Meanwhile, our focus remains on addressing your ever changing risk management needs and we will keep you informed as much as we can as we move toward completing this transaction. If you have any questions or concerns, please contact me, one of our regional Chief Executives or any of our underwriting colleagues throughout the globe.

Best regards,

/s/ Charles Cooper
